Does democracy stifle economic growth?	how China's authoritarian rule contributed to its astonishing economic growth -- leading to a big question: Is democracy actually holding India back?	Professor Yasheng Huang , MIT	http://www.ted.com/talks/yasheng_huang.html
The death of innovation, the end of growth	The US economy has been expanding wildly for two centuries. Are we witnessing the end of growth? Economist Robert Gordon lays out 4 reasons US growth may be slowing, detailing factors like epidemic debt and growing inequality, which could move the US into a period of stasis we can't innovate our way out of. Be sure to watch the opposing viewpoint from Erik Brynjolfsson.	Professor Robert Gordon , Northwestern University	http://www.ted.com/talks/robert_gordon_the_death_of_innovation_the_end_of_growth.html
The key to growth? Race with the machines	As machines take on more jobs, many find themselves out of work or with raises indefinitely postponed. Is this the end of growth? No, says Erik Brynjolfsson -- it's simply the growing pains of a radically reorganized economy. A riveting case for why big innovations are ahead of us ... if we think of computers as our teammates. Be sure to watch the opposing viewpoint from Robert Gordon.	Professor Erik Brynjolfsson , MIT Sloan	http://www.ted.com/talks/erik_brynjolfsson_the_key_to_growth_race_em_with_em_the_machines.html

Sustainable Development Goals – do we really need another set of international targets?	In his opening remarks to the Institute of Development Studies (IDS) and Overseas Development Institute (ODI) jointly convened debate on the future and feasibility of the proposed Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), the chair David Laws MP posed two key questions. Do we need a set of SDGs and can we realistically expect the United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development (Rio +20) taking place next month to deliver them?	Paul Ladd, an advisor to the UNDP; James Mackie, Senior Adviser at the European Centre for Development Policy Management; Matthew Lockwood, IDS; Claire Melamed, ODI;	http://www.ids.ac.uk/news/sustainable-development-goals-do-we-really-need-another-set-of-international-targets
The Next Global Development Agenda: from aspiration to delivery	2015 was the date set for achieving most of the Millennium Development Goals' targets. United Nations member states have agreed that there should be a post-2015 development agenda aimed at poverty eradication in the context of sustainable development. With negotiations on a new agenda set to begin in late 2014, Helen Clark will reflect on the inputs to the debate thus far and on how consensus can be reached on sustainable development goals.	Helen Clarke, the Administrator of UNDP	http://www.lse.ac.uk/newsAndMedia/videoAndAudio/channels/publicLecturesAndEvents/player.aspx?id=2192
Business and a post-2015 sustainable development agenda: where next?	As we approach 2015, the target date for the internationally-agreed Millennium Development Goals (MDGs), discussions on what will replace them are gaining momentum. While there have been a number of conversations about the role of the private sector in a new framework, there have been few specific suggestions on how businesses could become involved in a new set of goals. This event, co-organised by Business Fights Poverty, Stakeholder Forum and ODI aims to shift the focus of the conversation towards a more practical discussion of proposals.	Louise Haigh - Public Policy Manager, Aviva; Marianne Mwaniki - Senior Manager, Group Public Affairs, Standard Chartered; Christine Svarer - Head of Private Sector Engagement, CARE International UK; Dominic White - Head of International Development, WWF; David Hallam - Deputy Director, Post-2015 Development Goals, British Cabinet Office	http://www.odi.org.uk/events/3158-business-post-2015-sustainable-development
